

2013 Season Review

A historic team finally broke through for its first championship in the WFA in 2013. Meanwhile, for the second straight season, a one-time small-market team found big-market success in the IWFL. A former WFA squad settled on a name to engrave on the WSFL championship trophy, and the W8FL held its first true title contest.

Women's Football Alliance (WFA) – 2013 Season

For the third time in team history, the Chicago Force advanced to the national championship game in 2013. This time, they once again met the Dallas Diamonds, who had defeated them in overtime in the 2008 national title game. The Diamonds were seeking their fifth national championship (and their first since 2008), but the third time was the charm for the Force, who used a record scoring output to secure the first national championship in their illustrious history.
