

2017 Season Review

The WFA had its strongest season in history, featuring a record 65 teams across three divisions of play. In the top tier, the third time was the charm for a Lone Star powerhouse; WFA2 saw a repeat champion; and a short-handed squad returned from hiatus to top a crowded field for the WFA3 crown. The IWFL sagged to record-low numbers, and the defending champ once again breezed through the opposition for another title. The USWFL championship headed to the capital city, while the WXFL crown stayed right where it was for the third year in a row.

Women's Football Alliance (WFA) – 2017 Season

The WFA featured 65 teams split across three levels of play in 2017, which represented the largest number of teams to play within a single league in a single season in the history of the sport. In the top tier, the Dallas Elite made their third straight appearance in the WFA championship game, becoming the first team in WFA history to do so. There they faced the Boston Renegades, who were representing Boston in the title game for the first time since the Militia folded in 2014. The Elite held off the Renegades, 31-21, to bring a major national championship to Dallas for the first time since 2008.

Women's Football Alliance Tier II (WFA2) – 2017 Season

The WFA2 championship game was a repeat of the previous season's matchup. The Tampa Bay Inferno navigated their way through a much tougher field – bolstered by four additions from the IWFL – to win their second straight conference title. Meanwhile, the defending champion St. Louis Slam once again cruised to the WFA2 title game from the West. The championship matchup was a repeat of the previous year, and so was the result: the Slam doused the Inferno to claim their second straight league championship and their third overall in franchise history.

Women's Football Alliance Tier III (WFA3) – 2017 Season

The WFA's third tier exploded in 2017 to an astonishing 31 member teams, which resulted in a competitive chase for the championship. In the aftermath of a winless 2016 campaign and the Pulse nightclub shooting tragedy, the Orlando Anarchy inspired the sport by winning their first conference championship in 2017. The Arkansas Wildcats, returning from a hiatus in 2016, made an unlikely run to the championship game despite a small roster. The Wildcats ultimately capped off an improbable march to championship honors, toppling Orlando in the WFA3 title game.

Developmental National League Teams: 32 (31) Games: 122.5 (110.5)
 Championship game result: Arkansas Wildcats 42, Orlando Anarchy 26 (in Pittsburgh, PA)
